VIDEO: TOOLING UP: Electrical Safety Gloves Designed For Comfort and Protection

| Mar 25, 2025

Video Highlights

In this episode of MSC's Tooling Up, Toni Neary sits down with Jason Ghanny, Associate Director of Product Management and Business Development at Ansell, to discuss the latest advancements in electrical protection. Jason introduces the ActivArmr ULW Class 0 Electrical Gloves, a groundbreaking solution designed for superior safety, dexterity, and comfort.

The conversation explores how Ansell's proprietary material formulation allows for a glove that is 20% thinner than traditional Class 0 gloves while maintaining ASTM-certified protection up to 1000V AC and 1500V DC. Jason highlights the growing demand for lightweight, ergonomic PPE across industries such as AI technology, robotics, EV manufacturing, and electrical work.

Toni and Jason also break down the importance of proper glove donning and doffing, the role of rigorous testing in safety compliance, and how this latest innovation helps reduce hand fatigue for workers handling high-voltage applications.

Join Toni and Jason as they discuss how Ansell is redefining electrical safety standards and providing workers with the next level of protection and performance.
